Flood control back on ballot

By Bill Winter
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — County clerks were notified yesterday to conduct a new flood protection election Feb. 28.

A Metro East Sanitary District tax rate proposal that lost narrowly Nov. 8 is to be resubmitted.

Citing the hope of salvaging a $31 million, five-year public works project financed mainly by the federal government, the MESD board on Dec. 21 authorized a second referendum on the plan.

Although the work would be carried out by the Army Corps of Engineers, the MESD is required as the local sponsor, officials said.

The sponsor would meet the cost of operating and maintaining 60 deep wells/pumps and an improved network of river gates, pumping stations, canals and drainage ditches.

U.S. Rep. Jerry F. Costello said in mid-December, "The Corps of Engineers must have a non-federal entity by the early part of 1989 in order to retain and spend the federal money allocated for this project."

The October 1986 East St. Louis flood, caused when a Mississippi River gate broke, could occur again at any point in MESD territory, officials have asserted. MESD boundaries include the Quad City area, East St. Louis, Cahokia and Centerville.

"But whether another flood occurs or not, the consequences of inaction are so severe that the referendum must be held and approved," Jim Broadway said at a meeting Wednesday at the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

Spokesman for Citizens for Flood Protection, Broadway said, "The outlook — if flood protection is not restored — is even worse than that described during the November public information campaign."

Col. James E. Corbin, district engineer for the Engineer Corps' St. Louis District, this month cited the prospect of another "unsatisfactory" maintenance rating for the MESD flood control system.

"Since this would be the second such rating in a row, MESD would become ineligible for flood damage repair assistance under the provisions of Public Law 94-99," Corbin said.

"... If we believed that MESD could not even employ expedient measures to control flooding that could be caused by deteriorating components of the system, we would have to advise the Federal Emergency Management Agency that the project area had reverted to unprotected floodplain status."

"Property owners would then have to purchase flood insurance to protect themselves."

"And new construction would have to be curtailed, as federally-chartered institutions would be prohibited from providing financing."

Walter "Shang" Greathouse, MESD president, said after the November vote that a second election might succeed, due to the public's growing awareness of its physical and financial perils.

Broadway noted there were many other issues on the ballot, preventing voters from concentrating on the MESD question.

Greathouse said, regarding the district's levees and ditches, "Five to six years ago, the whole thing looked like a landfill. Even now, you try to stop someone from dumping and they pull a gun on you. ... All this junk ends up in our canals when the water rises. It washes down to our pump stations."

Progress has been made in cleaning trees and brush from ditches, but the maintenance staff often has to be diverted to clearing debris from pump areas, Greathouse said.

He added, "I have to keep my people at pumping stations that are falling apart, instead of sending them out to do cleaning."

"Every half-mile to quarter-mile, you see something else keeping the water from flowing. The whole thing has been allowed to go to heck."

"You get the Corps of Engineers in here renovating the pump stations and I can get my guys out doing what they should be doing... cleaning this all out."

Local man named jail superintendent

EDWARDSVILLE — James Edward Newsome Sr. of Madison, a 15-year veteran of the Madison County Sheriff's Department, is the new superintendent of the Madison County Jail in Edwarsville.

Madison County Sheriff Bob Churchich this morning announced Newsome's appointment, effective Jan. 1, 1989, together with a number of other departmental changes intended to provide better service.

Newsome, 43, is the first black officer assigned as superintendent of the Madison County Jail.

"Lt. Newsome brings 15 years of experience with the department to the position, including five years with the patrol division as assistant platoon commander," the sheriff said.

After joining the department as a patrol deputy in June 1973, Newsome graduated from the Police Academy at the University of Illinois in 1974. He was assigned as a detective in 1975, the first black detective in the history of the sheriff's department.

Newsome was promoted in June 1978 to the rank of detective sergeant and in 1983 to lieutenant. For several years, he served as a member of the Major Case Squad of the Greater St. Louis Metropolitan Area and he has received numerous letters of commendation for outstanding achievements.

A 1963 graduate of Madison High School, Newsome graduated from McKendree College, Lebanon, and Belleville Area College, majoring in administration of justice.

In his off-duty time he serves as member and secretary of the Madison School Board. He has been a board member since 1978.

Venice's '54 furnace fire fails

By Nicole Vaughn

VENICE — A $20,000 certificate of deposit in the District 3 building fund couldn't have chosen a better time to mature.

The Jan. 5 note will give the district much-needed money to cover the costs of a new heating unit and the drawing up of an asbestos management plan.

"After we take care of the heating system repairs and get on to the asbestos plan, we will have used most of that money," Superintendent Charles McCaskill said.

Earlier this month, a heating unit in one of the Chapter 1 reading rooms at Venice Elementary School broke down.

The unit, one of 10 purchased and installed in 1954, could not be repaired due to lack of replacement parts. The school board agreed to replace the unit with Ace Heating, purchasing a 75,000 Btu furnace plus installation costs for $1,150.

Because all of the units were purchased at the same time, there was some concern as to the condition of the remaining units.

"If we're having problems we need to see to them before extremely cold weather sets in," Wilbert Glasper, board president, said. "But even if there are some broken, we more than got our money's worth out of them."

BAC to review finances, spending

BELLEVILLE — The local community college board has agreed to hold a special meeting Saturday, Jan. 14, at 9 a.m. to discuss financial status and spending philosophy.

Belleville Area College board Chairman Larry Reineck said trustees probably will go into executive session to discuss the board's position on collective bargaining at that meeting as well.

Negotiations are expected to begin within the next few months on new contracts for faculty, staff and administrators, whose contracts expire June 30. All three groups agreed to wage freezes the past two years because of the college's financial woes.

In other late-December business:

•BAC President Joe Cipfl announced that the college's Programs and Services for Older Persons (PSOP) has given $5,000 to the BAC Foundation to help fund additional programs for senior citizens. The BAC Foundation is comprised of community leaders who volunteer their time to help in raising funds for the college.

Holiday plans — No stops, extra cops

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

With holiday festivities in full swing, a crackdown on drunken drivers will be keeping state and local police busy.

But according to Illinois State Police Lt. G. Cox, no driver checkpoints are scheduled.

"We have no specific checkpoints in mind," Cox said. "We will have an added work force with cars in various locations."

Cox said this will not prohibit individual officers from creating their own checkpoints for limited periods of time.

While he does expect a busy weekend, Cox said the holidays during the last few years have seen less accidents and DUI arrests (driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs) than in the past.

"People are having more home parties and using the designated driver system more often," Cox said. "That's what all law enforcement agencies want — everyone to have a good time but also to be careful and stay safe."

Locally, the Granite City Police Department will have extra officers on duty for the holiday weekend beginning at 3 p.m. New Year's Eve, a department spokesman said.

The spokesman said patrolmen had been given a subtle reminder to "vigorously" enforce drunken driving laws not only during the holidays, but in general.

During an average weekend, between three and eight DUIs are issued. The New Year's weekend yields a substantially higher number, the spokesman said.

Larry Williams, a safety professional with Country Companies Insurance and Investment

Group, says there are a number of ways drivers can help to keep the roads and themselves safer during the holidays.

While driving in town, he said, watch for drivers who make wide turns, almost hit another object or vehicle, disregard or overshoot traffic signals or signs, or make jerky stops at traffic signals.

Williams also says to be alert for vehicles that straddle the center of the lane, swerve aggressively, or move in and out of lanes.

He suggests that authorities be notified as soon as possible when a drunken driver is suspected.

According to the Illinois Department of Transportation, there were 3,460 accidents in Illinois during the 1987 Christmas weekend and an additional 5,122 crashes during the New Year's weekend.

City sells Dubbles lot

By Andy Stiering

MADISON — The City Council voted unanimously Tuesday night to sell city property to an Alton-based restaurant chain that will open a drive-through restaurant on Madison Avenue.

Philmark Inc. will pay $55,000 for the land at 321-327 Madison Ave., where it plans to open a Dubbles restaurant.

Philmark President Mark Schwartzkopf said Dubbles restaurants are "similar to Zipp's."

Zipp's sells a limited menu of comparatively inexpensive hamburgers, French fries, chili and beverages.

There are two Zipp's in Granite City, one on Madison Avenue downtown and the other on Johnson Road.

Schwartzkopf said there are currently seven Dubbles restaurants in the metro St. Louis area.

The Madison Dubbles would be the first in the Quad City area.

Schwartzkopf said the restaurant would be built within a few months and would employ about 35 people, 10 of them full time.

Mayor John Bellico hailed the sale and the new restaurant as signs of revitalization of the commercial strip on Madison Avenue.

Construction is scheduled to start next month on a new restaurant's convenience store in the 1200 block of Madison Avenue.

"The Lord only knows what's going to happen between" (the two stores), Bellico said.

Schwartzkopf said Philmark, which was formed a little more than one year ago, plans to have 27 restaurants in the bi-state area by the end of 1989 and another 12 in Ohio, Kansas and Colorado.

will offer a no-smoking policy for its consideration at the Jan. 15 board meeting. The policy would ban smoking in classrooms, restrooms and other designated areas.

The policy was developed by the Student Senate and the Faculty Senate, Cipf said.

"Accepting the recommendations of its Building and Grounds Committee, the board unanimously approved the purchase of a 15-passenger van from Erwin J. Benth Motors, 220 W. Main St., Mascoutah, for $12,000; and the hiring of Belleville architect Bob Ganschnitz as the college's architect."

"Larry Schmalenberger, vice president of administrative services, told the board the college's health/safety fund had an excess fund balance of $134,095."

Though projects at the Belleville campus cost about $3,000 more than expected, projects at the Granite City campus cost almost $100,000 less than expected because they were completed ahead of schedule.

Board member Bob Dintelmann, chairman of the Building and Grounds Committee, said, "It speaks well for our people and the contractors" that the projects were finished ahead of time.

Cipf told the board the college saved $12,502 in energy costs by going to a four-day work week last summer. Cipf said this amount was impressive, considering the extreme temperatures. He said more details will be available at the regular January board meeting.

Board member Elizabeth Jenner announced the college is sponsoring a Fine Arts Festival Feb. 5-12. A final schedule of events still has to be determined.

Do-it-yourself bookshelves: unpainted lumber planks separated and supported by cedar blocks. The shelves won't sag as long as the blocks are no more than 24 to 30 inches apart.

Why a primer? On unpainted surfaces, you want to seal the surface and create a foundation for the paint you've chosen. You'll also want a stain-sealing primer if you're painting over water stains on a ceiling, or other stains likely to bleed through ordinary paint.

Looking for values in older houses? One historic-properties expert recommends houses built between 1890 and 1935, a time of "highest quality building." Most of the homes will need work, though.

Upgrading and replacing locks in an old door? Many manufacturers make escutcheon plates that will hide the old holes, so you won't have to replace the door.

You can almost double your closet space by double-decking the rods. If you don't want permanent construction, choose the vinyl-coated metal units that lock together.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes, people wonder what procedures they should follow if their car stalls in the middle of a highway. Illinois law provides that from sunset to sunrise every motor vehicle which is standing on any highway shall display a parking light on the front and at the rear of the vehicle. If an individual whose car is stalled fails to display these parking lights, and his car is struck from the rear, is the stranded motorist necessarily at fault in this situation? A recent case answered this question.

In this case, an automobile owned by the defendant stalled in the left passing lane of a divided four-lane highway. A friend of the defendant's drove around and faced the stalled car and was attempting to jump-start the vehicle. The plaintiff was traveling approximately 35 m.p.h. when he came upon the defendant's stalled car. The plaintiff applied his brakes to avoid an accident, but he struck the rear of the disabled car.

Despite the fact that the defendant did not display any parking lights on the stalled vehicle, the jury found in favor of the defendant. The jury apparently felt that the defendant's conduct in having his defective car on the road as well as his conduct after the car stalled was not negligent in light of all the evidence. The plaintiff sustained rather severe personal injuries, and he appealed the verdict of the jury.

The question in this case is whether the defendant's violation of the safety statute constituted negligence as a matter of law. The Appellate Court noted that whether conduct is negligent is normally left to a jury for evaluation. The Appellate Court felt that the jury should decide whether the defendant acted reasonably under the circumstances.

The Appellate Court affirmed the decision of the trial court in favor of the defendant. The evidence established that the defendant's car stalled due to an electrical shortage, causing all the lights to be extinguished. Therefore, the defendant was prevented from moving the stalled car. Several other cars passed the stalled vehicle in the open right-hand lane before the plaintiff collided with the stalled car. The Court noted that different conclusions could be reached as to whether the defendant acted reasonably or not, and that he could to prevent the accident. The Appellate Court refused to re-evaluate the evidence and set aside the jury verdict in this matter.

Major advances in area AIDS study

Two researchers from St. Louis University Medical Center have made scientific discoveries that may lead to major advances in AIDS research and provide a promising new approach to drug therapy, University officials say.

The research by Maurice Green, professor and chairman of the Institute for Molecular Virology at the medical center, and Paul M. Loewenstein, a research associate at St. Louis University School of Medicine, was published in the Dec. 23 issue of Cell magazine, a scientific publication.

The paper describes functions of the tat gene product of HIV, the virus associated with AIDS. The AIDS virus is regulated by the tat gene, which is a protein made up of 86 amino acids. The function of the tat gene is essential for viral growth. If this gene is not functional, AIDS cannot replicate itself within a cell.

The researchers have chemically synthesized in a test tube the tat regulatory protein, which is biologically active. When this purified protein is added to the outside of the cell, it is taken up by the cell, which turns on—trans-activates—the AIDS virus within the cell.

This is the first time any extracellular protein has been shown to be taken up by cells and to alter the regulation of gene expression within the cell. It is not yet known whether this process plays a role in HIV infection, but it could potentially be involved in turning on HIV in cells carrying latent virus.

Following earlier work identifying the domains of certain proteins and viruses thought to cause cancer within cells, Green and Loewenstein demonstrate that the trans-activating—turning on—function of HIV tat is carried by a small portion of the molecule. Using peptides that correspond to part of the tat protein, they show that only a small region of tat amino acids is essential for turning on activity within a cell.

This research is being used as a model system to develop compounds that block the function of the HIV virus in cells and that may be effective in the therapy of AIDS.

John 10:10... "I am come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly."

There is one thing that we can be absolutely sure of, and that is that Jesus came. History records the fact that He came. So it is not just within the sphere of the Christian faith that this fact is acknowledged. Even unbelievers say it is so.

Why He came is the reason we should be excited. "I am come that ye might have life." Christ alone can give us eternal life, redeem us from our sins, forgive us of our transgressions, blot out our iniquities, write our names in the Lamb's book of life, and justify us in the sight of God. O blessed privilege!

We can have this life according to Jesus' teachings, and we can have it now. He said, "I am come that ye might have life." All indications in the Bible prove that He desired to give us abundant life.

He came to save sinners and to convince unbelievers. He came through our resistance, our stubbornness, our rebellion, our pride. He came through our possessions, through our love of pleasure, and our love of life. He came through our sorrows, heartaches, and our discouragements.

Praise God forevermore! He came to Satan's territory. He broke the yoke of bondage. He redeemed us from the curse. He came to give us life more abundantly!

Rash predictions for '89

Observant readers will note that "Lost In This Space" has lost its usual space this week, evicted to make room for a retrospective of the year's big stories.

Personally, I think it was an irresponsible editorial decision. Who knows what havoc might be wreaked on society by addicted readers deprived of this weekly dose of lunacy? After all, they can't be too stable to begin with.

So I guess I need to do something special to grab their attention. Hold your ears. HEY, LOOK OVER HERE!!!! HERE I AM!!!!!!

Ah, there you are. Welcome. You got here just in time for my fearless predictions for the coming year.

Shaking off the daze produced by drinking too much eggnog (holly daze?), I gaze into my crystal ball and predict....

• 1989 will have one less day than 1988!

• The baseball Cardinals will finish in the National League East in 1989. Exactly where they will finish is impossible to predict. It could be the penthouse; it could be the outhouse. Also, at some point Ozzie Smith will say he was misquoted.

• Contrary to his campaign promises, George Bush will raise taxes. But he will do as his predecessor did and call it something else. Reagan raised taxes half a dozen times, but he called it "revenue enhancement." Also, read George's lips as he blames it on Congress.

• I predict the Serra Sculpture will continue to rust.

• Elvis Presley will be sighted 487,876,349 times, resulting in 487,876,349 stories in supermarket tabloids. But he will still be dead.

• (Managing Editor Dennis Grubaugh donated this prediction.) Dan Partney will file more lawsuits in 1989, but no one will care. (This item is rigged because it almost guarantees the Press-Record will get hit with a suit.)

• (News Editor Mike Myers volunteered this zinger.) Dick Allen will find he cannot plea-bargain divorces.

• Singer Michael Jackson will

Lost In This Space

By Andy Siering

get even more weird.

• Sometime before the mayoral election in Madison, Mayor John Bellico will attempt to appoint Alderman and political opponent Ron Grzywacz as Madison's ambassador to Chad.

• Shang Greathouse will wave his hands and divide the Mississippi River. Helen Hawkins will walk halfway across on dry land, at which time Greathouse will wave his hands again and the waters will return.

• Actress Shirley MacLaine will claim in a best-seller to be the reincarnation of (a) the Virgin Mary, (b) Cleopatra, (c) Susan B. Anthony or (d) all of the above.

• The Florida citrus groves will freeze, causing crop failure. Former orange juice spokeswoman, singer and noted homophobe Anita Bryant will seize the moment and make a comeback by organizing a benefit for the citrus growers called Lemon Aid. But her comeback album of duets with Ozzy Osbourne will flop miserably.

• Scientists will discover that red meat, white sugar and Thunderbird wine are actually good for you.

• Scientists will discover that the hole in the ozone layer is actually caused by televised reruns of "Gulliver's Island."

• Mikhail Gorbachev will be ousted as Soviet leader. In a snit, he will defect to the U.S., where he will open Gorbys' Global Vision, a multi-national public relations company specializing in right-wing causes.

• Morton Downey Jr. will take a vow of silence. The vow will last exactly 0.000006 seconds as measured by atomic clock.

• I will hit the lottery grand prize.

• I will not promise to continue working afterward.

Top stories of the year, 1988

The Press-Record and Journal staff looks at the top news events of the past year

The story of Gene Arnett led the way in the newsroom vote of the top stories of the year. Each member of the news staff was given the same list of stories nominated by the editor and asked to rank the top 10, with No. 1 being the most important, etc. The stories, we feel are emblematic of the news-coverage given them during 1988.

The trials of Gene Arnett

1 Todd E. Scrum, a 21-year-old college student from Granite City, died senselessly Oct. 24, 1987, on Interstate 270.

The cause of death was believed, at first, to have been a one-car accident. But Deputy Coroner Ed Werner found several small shotgun pellets when he prepared the body and later X-rays showed Scrum's head was full of pellets.

Scrum had been shot once in the head with a 20-gauge shotgun as he drove home from a dance in Edwardsville. He had been shot from such close range, the shot gun blast left only a 1-inch hole in his head.

Scrum's death became one of 10 highway sniping incidents that put the Quad City area in the grip of fear for more than two months.

Gene Arnett, a heavily tattooed convicted-felon who never returned to school after the 7th Grade, was released from the State Correctional Facility at Joliet in several months before the shooting. He had served nine years for burglary.

When he was arrested in November 1987, Arnett was the major suspect in at least five shootings. As he was lead out of court he smiled at reporters and fired an imaginary gun.

In June, Arnett went on trial for the murder of Scrum at the Madison County Courthouse in Edwardsville. The trial opened with Arnett admitting he fired the shot, but saying he had not intended to kill anyone.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Trone called Arnett the Highway Pirate: "Sailing along I-270 and firing shots across the bows of innocent cruisers." Public Defender John Rekowski called the act "reckless" and said Arnett was guilty of less than murder.

The trial became a tale of two families. The Scrums sat in silence and listened to a string of witnesses, most with criminal records of their own, tell how Arnett bragged about having "blowed away" some guy on the interstate. They heard Victoria Cleveland, Arnett's former girlfriend, told of his habit of using smiley faces instead of period at the end of sentences, even in a letter threatening her if she testified. They heard of a mysterious man, called only Polack, who drove as Arnett fired.

The Arnett family was also at the trial. Jim Arnett, his father, and John Arnett, his brother, provided key testimony concerning Gene Arnett's possession of a shotgun. They tied him to a car that Trone used to connect Arnett to two other highway snipings.

While the jury deliberated, the Scrum family was surrounded by friends, reporters, lawyers and public officials. The Arnett family stood alone in a far corner of the courtroom.

"I don't know who to feel more sorry for," a radio reporter said. "The Scrums' son is dead. But the Arnett's have to live with a mad-dog killer for a son."

Arnett was convicted of murder and sentenced to 40 years.

Later Arnett pleaded guilty to murdering a clerk at Beach Hook's store and attempting to murder a gas station attendant in Granite City. He was sentenced to spend the rest of his natural life in prison.

District strike sets record

2 Granite City students got an extended vacation during the summer of 1988 after District 9 teachers launched a record-breaking 22-calendar-day strike.

The longest strike previously was in 1969, lasting from Aug. 27 to Sept. 16.

Granite City Federation of Teachers Local 743 officially went on strike Sept. 6. The teachers' contracts had expired Aug. 15 and negotiations had been unsuccessful during the first week of classes, which began Aug. 29.

A delay in the start of negotiations led to charges of unfair labor practices against the District 9 school board. While the board denied violating the Illinois Education Labor Relations Act, it agreed to a charge of failing to form a negotiating team in timely manner only to "avoid litigation and the costs thereof and for settlement purposes."

A tentative agreement was reached between teachers and the district on Sept. 26, with the teachers voting to end the strike the following night. Classes resumed Sept. 28.

Teachers ratified their contract on Oct. 26 followed by school board approval on Nov. 1. The teachers had waited for the Local 743 Secretary's Council to negotiate a contract with the district before holding a ratification vote, accounting for the delay.

The two-year contract, retroactive to Aug. 15, called for a 4 percent raise during the first semester and a 2 percent raise during the second. Salary negotiations are set to resume in October 1989, and a verbal confrontation with three carloads of young people on his first day, Jason settled comfortably into a class at South Roxana Elementary.

Since then he has been well received by his 22 classmates and has some physical problems, he has missed only two days of school.

His mother said she appreciates all the support the family has received in the South Roxana community but she still misses Granite City.

Jason, a hemophiliac, is believed to have contracted the virus that causes AIDS through contaminated blood products.

The AIDS battle of Jason

3 Jason Robertson and his family won a legal battle that allowed him to return to a Prather Elementary classroom in May, but the courtroom victory was short-lived for the 8-year-old victim of AIDS-related complex.

Just a few months after the federal court decision, Jason's mother, Deborah Robertson, filed a complaint with the Granite City Police Department on Aug. 9 alleging that a man struck her on the forehead with a night stick, telling her not to allow her son to return to school. The family fled Granite City soon after the incident.

After a brief time, the Robertsons surfaced again, this time in South Roxana.

Following initial protests from a few parents and a verbal confrontation with three carloads of young people on his first day, Jason settled comfortably into a class at South Roxana Elementary.

Since then he has been well received by his 22 classmates and has some physical problems, he has missed only two days of school.

His mother said she appreciates all the support the family has received in the South Roxana community but she still misses Granite City.

Jason, a hemophiliac, is believed to have contracted the virus that causes AIDS through contaminated blood products.

Costello wins fight for 21st

4 Jerry F. Costello, a Belleville Democrat, became the 21st District representative in Congress during 1988, capturing four elections.

Rep. Melvin Price, 83, who had decided to retire after serving continuously since January 1945, died in April. His long career included service as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, first chairman of the House Ethics Committee and chairman of the Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy.

St. Clair County Board chairman for nearly eight years, Costello, 38, won the Democratic primary in March with 34,195 votes to 20,228 for Pete Fields, 19,566 for Mike Mansfield and 1,234 for Steve Mangold.

Special elections were held in the summer. Costello defeated Clarence Ellis 18,253 to 2,062 in a July primary and edged Robert Gaffner, 55, a Greenville Republican, 33,250 to 31,277 in August general balloting.

After being sworn in at the Capitol in August for an unexpired term, Costello on Nov. 8 won a two-year House term with 106,838 to Gaffner's 97,216 despite the Republican college administration's aggressive campaign assailing St. Clair County political practices.

MESD falters at the polls

5 A $31 million public works project was derailed Nov. 3 when voters rejected a plan to increase the tax rate limit of the Metro East Sanitary District. The vote was 16,520 no to 15,318 yes.

Whether the planning and financing can be salvaged has not been determined. With most of the cost to be borne by the federal government, it was proposed to upgrade MESD pump stations, gates and drainage ditches and then install a network of deep wells and pumps to lower the water table. The work would have been carried out by the Army Corps of Engineers. Targets included Mississippi River flooding, like that which caused heavy damage and one death in East St. Louis in October 1966. Twelve hundred persons were routed from their homes, and livestock were estimated at $18 million.

Also to be remedied were interior flooding, due to rainfall and bluff area runoff, and underground water that has damaged homes, buildings and sewer lines.

There was no organized opposition but some voters said they were hesitant to authorize higher real estate taxes. Citizens for Flood Protection sought "yes" votes, citing flood dangers and employment needs and asserting that benefits would far outweigh costs to Metro East families. The group said lack of the improvements jeopardizes property values and creates barriers to economic and industrial expansion.

American Steel plans return

6 The roar that reverberated through American Steel Foundries on Nov. 17 was music to ears of many steelworkers laid off when the company closed Nov. 6, 1982.

The roar was the sound of the furnace being fired up. The test firing was a preliminary step in the possible recall of 960 workers on the seniority list.

Assistant Works Manager Tom Majewski said no date had been set for the reopening of the foundry, which at its peak in 1979-80 employed 1,850 workers and was the largest maker of railroad trucks in the United States. Currently, 53 workers are retraining for other jobs.

"Cost factors and market conditions will be the determining factor," Majewski said.

Majewski said the company has already signed agreements with three of the four unions representing workers.

"We had no problems at all," he said of negotiations.

Police test battle continues

7 The controversy involving promotion tests given by the Granite City Police Department in 1988 took almost two years to surface and another year before any legal action was taken. It is not over until a final test to the death battle with clear winners and losers.

In an issue that surfaced just after the April 1987 municipal election, two Granite City policemen were reported to have scored the two highest scores on a standardized examination. At the suggestion of Mayor Von Dee Cruse, then-Chief of Police Bill Harrison and policeman Tim Lyerla (who had the third highest score, well behind the other two, among those who took the test in Granite City), an investigation was begun by Assistant City Attorney John Hopkins.

The investigation was later taken over by the Illinois Department of Criminal Investigation and the Madison County State's Attorney Office.

Former Chairman of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners Dan Partney, a 4th Ward alderman and Police Sergeant David Rosenberg and Jim Reader were indicted by a grand jury Jan. 21 for allegedly cheating on the test. The two policemen were reported to have received the two highest scores in the nation on the standardized written examination, and Partney was accused of having provided them with copies of the test prior to their taking it.

The key witness at the grand jury hearing was Partney's son Daniel who testified he had seen the three sitting at Partney's kitchen table with the tests in front of them. Partney, who had been elected alderman in a race against Cruse-appointed and supported Tom Hewlett, said the whole thing was political.

Partney's case was the first to come up for trial, but at a pretrial hearing May 9, Assistant State's Attorney Richard Rybak withdrew the indictment because of "technical flaws." When the hearing dates for Rosenberg and Reader came up, their indictments were also withdrawn. Rybak said he intended to take the case back to the grand jury.

Partney, Reader and Rosenberg were charged again June 8, this time by Special Prosecutor Clyde L. Kuehn — appointed to the case a day earlier. The three chose to be tried together and, after a long series of pretrial hearings, were set to go to trial Aug. 26. Although a panel of prospective jurors was put together, a jury was never selected. After a long day of desperately trying to hold the case together Kuehn withdrew the charges, citing lack of evidence, late that afternoon.

Kuehn said the case depended on being able to show that the Rosenberg and Reader's test scores were so high it was unlikely they could be obtained honestly. He said there wasn't admissible evidence showing that. He told the judge he didn't see the case getting any better in the future and that he wouldn't pursue charges again. Partney told supporters and reporters outside the court room: "Now it's our turn."

Partney filed a million-dollar lawsuit naming Cruse and Hopkins as defendants Dec. 7. Rosenberg filed a lawsuit for a lesser amount on Dec. 21 naming Hopkins, Lyerla, Harris and the city of Granite City as defendants. Reader's attorney has filed a notice to Granite City of intent to make a claim.

Big project at G.C. Steel

8 Construction of a second continuous caster at Granite City Steel was approved by the Board of Directors of its parent company, National Steel Corp., at a meeting Nov. 1 in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The $30 million dollar project, coupled with a $40 million refurbishing of a blast furnace, demonstrates National Steel has a "strong commitment to the future of its operations here," said company spokesman Ben Johannpeter. The other blast furnace was rebuilt last year.

Construction of the caster will begin in the first three months of 1989.

When the caster project is completed late in 1990, all of the steel produced here will be continuous casting, which Johannpeter said produces steel of higher quality at a lower cost than the old ingot casting method.

Johannpeter said the new caster would "stabilize" employment levels at the company, but result in no new jobs or loss of jobs.

Granite works on Wal-Mart

9 Granite City's downtown development plans called for an anchor store and Wal-Mart was the first choice of many city officials.

When Wal-Mart representatives canceled a scheduled visit at the end of May, they promised not to forget Granite City when it planned future expansion.

City officials decided, however, that a gentle reminder wouldn't hurt.

The city held a town meeting to develop a plan of action and, as a result, more than 100 volunteers hit the streets of the city collecting letters asking Wal-Mart to build a store in Granite City.

Originally, the plan was to mail the letters, but the effort was so successful — more than 13,000 letters were collected in less than three weeks — that it was decided to hand-deliver them to Wal-Mart representatives in Bentonville, Ark.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse, Magna Bank Chairman Mel Willsmeier, Tri-Cities Chamber of Commerce Development Coordinator Alan Lombardi and Economic Development Director West Doss.

Doss, impressed with the community effort, promised that Granite City will remain on Wal-Mart's "hot list" and, if all goes well, that Granite City might get a store in 1990.

Threatened depot expands

10 The Charles Melvin Price U.S. Army Support Center in Granite City progressed greatly during 1988, even after a rumored threat to close the institution surfaced in September.

In November the army depot broke ground on a $9.7 million, 100-unit military subdivision that will house up to 400 Army personnel. Officials said it will have a major economic impact on Granite City. The project, being completed by Ray Contracting Co. of St. Louis, should take 18 months to complete.

In mid-December a ribbon-cutting ceremony marked the opening of a privately owned vehicle processing center. The center will be a drop-off point for military and civilian personnel assigned to both Europe and the Far East, who fly in and out of St. Louis. It is expected the center will handle 1,500 cars a month.

All of these events were planned long in advance, but they seem to put in perspective the rumor that surfaced in September that the Price Center was one of a handful in the nation targeted for closing due to budget reasons. That rumor, spawned by an article in U.S. News and World Reports, has not yet panned out. U.S. Rep. Bill Costello, D-Belleville, and others are fighting to preserve the local military operation, but others in army hierarchy say the center is preserved simply by virtue of the new investment. A federal commission is now studying base closings nationwide and should have recommendations in the next few weeks.

In addition, construction of a large hotel at the Price Support Center is likely, according to Major Jerry McDonald, interim commanding officer.

The proposed hotel would be built by the successful bidder, usually a hotel/motel chain, rather than at governmental expense.

The hotel would accommodate 120,000 persons yearly and would enable the Price Center to serve a larger portion of the personnel assigned regularly or temporarily to this region. Construction is projected for 1990.

Projects listed as likely in future months and years include upgrading of aging buildings, and their utility services; increases in the currently limited vehicle parking areas; expansion of chapel and dependent care center facilities; construction of a combined service center; and provision of diverse services to travelers.

chief of detectives," Churchill said.

Lt. Dennis Fischer, 37, of Wood River leaves the post of chief of detectives to assume the dual role of assistant chief of detectives and community relations coordinator for the department.

"I feel that Lt. Fischer's experience as chief of detectives uniquely qualifies him for the new post as community relations coordinator. He will be designated to serve as liaison with the public on a full-time basis," Churchill said.

In his newly created position, Fischer will improve dissemination of information, especially to inform citizens on methods of preventing crime and protecting themselves, the sheriff said.

In another reorganization move, I have assigned Donald Bridick, 48, additional duties as coordinator of security for the Madison County Courthouse," Churchill said.

Bridick, of Madison, has served as director of special operations since Dec. 1, 1986, when he accepted the following a career with the Madison County Police, including a stint as chief of police. He also served as liaison with the state's attorney's office.

The problem of security in the courthouse has intensified over the past several years," Churchill said.

"A deputy was assigned to the courthouse some time ago, but I feel coordination of activities among many county offices is now required," Churchill said.

Bridick has been based in the Madison County state's attorney's office, but has now been assigned an office in the courthouse to better coordinate security there, the sheriff said.

"He will work closely with judges and county officials to provide maximum security for employees and people of Madison County who visit the courthouse," Churchill said.

Lt. Conrad Baetz has been assigned as assistant commander of the Processing Division within the sheriff's department with additional duties as coordinator of the department's management information systems.

"It has become increasingly apparent the computerization and automation of records and information is necessary to keep Madison County law enforcement in a state-of-the-art position," Churchill explained.

Baetz, of Edwardsville, who was previously assigned to the Processing Division, is expected to work closely with all Madison County data processing and automation efforts, the sheriff said.

But when everything is falling apart, you have to just fix things when they break."

Broadway said Citizens for Flood Protection will begin efforts in January to make sure that all MESD residents are aware of the costs of proceeding or not proceeding with restoration of flood control facilities.

"The improvements are needed to protect local communities from the river, from surface flooding and from groundwater. People also would find they are unable to sell, afford or buy homes."

"It would be much costlier to everyone to not go ahead with this project, but many have not yet been aware that their area faces both flooding devastation and economic destruction."

said none of the others were broken.

We want to move on this and get it done while the kids are out on (holiday) vacation," McCaskill said.

The board also accepted an asbestos management plan bid for $7,000 from ARC of Chicago. Unlike a previous company, ARC did not offer a three-day training session so that district employees could be trained to perform routine asbestos checks.

Nominating himself and Pete Ponce, director of the Venice-Lincoln Technical Center, to perform the checks, McCaskill said the board must find a certification program that meets state guidelines.

Trivia

A stop to all development in Dobry Slough went into effect March 17, 1971, because the East Side Levee and Sanitary District considered the area essential for holding flood water. A resolution lifting the moratorium was passed by the Madison County Board May 7, 1973. The swampy area is northeast of Granite City.

Cold wave, snow catch drivers unprepared for winter trouble

By Craig A. Martin
Staff affiliate

This week's snow storm and subsequent cold snap found a lot of people in the area unprepared for the hazards of winter driving.

Again, "It happens every year. Some people just don't think about preparing their cars for winter until it's too late," said Mike Right, spokesman for the AAA Auto Club of Missouri.

Right said that AAA had answered about 1,000 calls in the 24-hour period between Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

"Without the snow, we would field about a third of that number of calls," he said.

Granite City had its share of problems, but St. Louis city and county police had far more. Traffic accidents were numerous, and Tuesday's evening rush hour traffic was "extremely bad" in most parts of the city and county, police said.

Fortunately, a lot of businesses let their employees go home early. That helped a little," said Sgt. Terry Brindell, St. Louis County Police Department.

Right said that the number of calls to AAA also was lower than it could have been.

"It could have been worse. The fact that this was not the first cold spell or the first snow of the year helped," he said.

Right said the cold snap and early snow in November helped "weed out" some of the weaker batteries and cars needing more service.

"A lot of our calls this time were for frozen locks and doors, due to the rain and the rapidly falling temperatures," he said.

The AAA Auto Club of Missouri offers these tips for preparing for winter driving.

• Clear your car of snow and ice completely. Snow left on your hood and trunk poses a threat to other motorists if it falls off, and snow left on your roof could easily slide down your windshield, immobilizing windshield wipers, thereby blinding you while driving.

• If your car becomes stuck or slides off an interstate highway, it is probably not a good idea to go for help. Walking along or crossing the highway is extremely dangerous, especially in snow.

Instead, carry a "Send Help" or other motorist alert sign, and wait for someone to call help for you, (a CB radio also is handy for this purpose).

• Carry a few essential supplies to help in case of emergency. Essentials are: Extra clothing or a blanket, a quantity of abrasive material (rock salt, sand) and kitty litter (all work well), a small shovel, a good ice scraper, booster cables and flares or warning triangles in case you car becomes disabled in a traffic lane.

• Don't use your parking brake during extremely cold weather if you can avoid it. Brakes become laden with slush and snow and can freeze, causing brakes to lock and prevent the car from moving. Another result can be uneven handling and excessive brake wear.

• Keep locks well lubricated and cover them with tape if freezing rain is expected. If locks do become frozen, try heating the key with a flame, then insert it into the lock and try again. Do not use undue force—a broken key is worse than a frozen lock. Also, remember to try the other doors. Once inside with the heater working, many doors will thaw on their own.

For more information on winter driving, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-sized envelope to: AAA Winter Driving, 12901 N. Outer 40, St. Louis, Mo. 63141.

Amtrak 'moves' stalled pickup

VENICE — An Amtrak engine moved a pickup truck — abandoned on the railroad tracks south of the Market Street crossing at State Street in Venice — at 12:25 a.m. Christmas Eve.

James Doerr, engineer on the southbound train, said the engine brakes were applied when the truck was seen on the tracks, but the train slid into the truck and pushed the vehicle 200 feet before stopping.

Christopher Tucker of East St. Louis went to the police station at 3:30 a.m. and reported that, while he was driving east on Bissell Street into Refound Street, the brakes on the vehicle failed to respond and the truck ended up on the tracks.

Tucker was unable to move the truck, so he abandoned it, he said.

Stolen car stopped in Venice

VENICE — An auto reported stolen from the 200 block of Roosevelt Drive in Eagle Park about 3 a.m. Monday was seen about an hour later by a Venice officer. The vehicle was traveling south on South 4th Street and was stopped by police near the Wiggin Highline.

The 1982 Monte Carlo was occupied by six people, who were taken to the Venice police station for questioning. Five were released the same day to the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

Kenneth D. Harris, 24, of East St. Louis, the alleged driver, was charged with offenses related to a motor vehicle, a Class II felony, a spokesman for the sheriff's department said Wednesday. Bond was set at $25,000.

Two men and two women, all from East St. Louis, who were in the car and were taken to Edwardsville, were released without being charged.

Melvina Odell of East St. Louis, also a passenger, was detained at the Venice City Jail on a Macon County (Decatur) warrant alleging retail theft. She was released to Macon County authorities at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Winter wonderland of yuletide carols includes candlelight on a holy night

"Yuletide carols being sung by a choir."

It was a great weekend for me because, among other aspects of Christmas, I greatly enjoy the seasonal music.

Unfortunately, we'll have to wait another 11 months or so to hear it again.

A HIGHLIGHT was the music in the Christmas Eve service at Granite City's oldest church, St. John United Church of Christ (Evangelical and Reformed), established in the Civil War era by local German farmers.

Built on a lonely prairie site, it hasn't moved but is now in the heart of town, on Nameoki Road.

As is traditional at St. John, the Christmas Eve selections included Silent Night, sung in German and English by members of the congregation as they held lighted candles.

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winter

OUR EVENING BEGAN at the home of two of the godparents of our son, Bill Winter Jr. They are Helen and Ralph Stegelmeyer. Adding to the holiday joy while we were there, Christmas carols were performed by Sally Stegelmeyer at the keyboard and Judy Rousseau playing the flute.

Marc Rousseau didn't present any music that night but was preparing to perform as a percussionist with his university band at a holiday football bowl.

Not to overlook the other godparents, most of our Christmas Day was spent at the home of Jan and Bud Kies. John Kies played carols on the violin but Julie Kies was too busy to play her flute; she was preparing to leave the next day to participate with her university band at still another holiday football bowl and in a Disneyland parade.

AT THE CHURCH service ending at midnight, preliminary music consisted of carols for piano and organ, including We Three Kings, Carol of the Birds, I Saw Three Ships and Bring a Torch, Jeanette, Isabella.

French carol miniatures, with Deborah Benzing at the piano, included Noel Nouvelet, Quell est

Cetta Odeur Agreable, Touro Louro Touro, Dors Ma Colombe and Pat A Pan.

Jennifer Sage, soprano, sang O Holy Night better than I've ever heard it.

CHRISTMAS ANTHEMS and hymns by the Chancel Choir under the direction of Alan Miller consisted of:

O Come All Ye Faithful, On Christmas Night All Christians Sing, The King of Glory, Rejoice and Sing Noel, O Little Town of Bethlehem, Candlelight Carol and Hark! The Herald Angels Sing.

After their recessional, choir members materialized again near the altar to sing additional carols as their fellow church members extended holiday greetings to pastor Allen Reiter and associate pastor James Benzing.

INTERNATIONAL considerations are an integral part of Christmas, with its emphasis on "peace on earth."

Many of the holiday carols originated in other lands, and Christians continue to try to extend their faith to people in a growing number of countries around the world.

Rev. Reiter included in his sermon a discussion of a Christian church in China. Coincidentally, we shared Christmas dinner with Jack Xie of China.

ON CHRISTMAS NIGHT our family activities included a game that utilizes 24 cartoons. Each contains a clue or two, from which participants attempt to guess the name of a holiday song.

In case you haven't heard the names of enough carols already in this column, we'll mention some of those that were part of the game:

Jingle Bells, Here Comes Santa Claus, Joy to the World, Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer, I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas, O Christmas Tree, Away in a Manger, Deck the Halls, The First Noel, The 12 Days of Christmas, I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus, All I Want for Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth, The Christmas Song (Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire), It Came Upon a Midnight Clear, Silver Bells and Let It Snow, Let It Snow.

And then there's my favorite, Walking in a Winter Wonderland.

State news

Governor appeals for super collider

In a letter to President Ronald Reagan, Gov. James R. Thompson last week urged the president to overturn a decision by the U.S. Department of Energy and locate in Illinois the Superconducting Super Collider, to conduct high-energy experiments in physics.

Illinois was one of seven states being considered for the SSC. The Department of Energy announced Texas as the site on Nov. 10.

"Fermilab (in Illinois) is the premier laboratory in the world for high-energy physics research. A decision to build a new facility, rather than building on Fermilab, is nonsensical. Fermilab offers significant savings... The project can start sooner in Illinois," Thompson stated.

Research targets ethanol byproducts

A state multi-agency effort is aimed at advancing two areas of agricultural research — turning byproducts of ethanol fuel production into livestock feed and finding a way to treat hay products infected with toxic fungus.

An ethanol fuel plant operated by Illinois Correctional Industries at the Vienna Correctional Center will provide the focus of the research. "Not only will we be able to assist the important research, but we also will be giving prison inmates agricultural job training and will provide feed for prison livestock," Gov. James R. Thompson said.

Information sought in death of rare deer

Department of Conservation officials are seeking information that might lead to the arrest of the gunman who killed one of the rare albino deer Dec. 18 inhabiting Lake Sangre de Cristo, 15 miles south of Springfield.

Although deer may be hunted in season within some portions of the 4,000-acre site, it is a violation of state law at any time to injure or kill the unique white deer. Willfully shooting an all-white deer is a Class B misdemeanor, which carries a maximum fine of $500 and a six-month jail term.

Department denies detective work card

Among the summary of disciplinary action taken by the Illinois Department of Professional Regulation during December is the denial of a permanent detective employee registration card for Kenneth R. Biggs of the 3400 block of Kirkpatrick Homes in Granite City.

Bridge swap aids the 'Link'

We salute the St. Louis Aldermanic Board for approving transfer of the city's MacArthur Bridge to the Terminal Railroad Association in exchange for TRRA's Eads Bridge.

The transaction is a key step, setting the stage for creation of the 18-mile rapid-transit "light rail" commuter line known as Metro Link. The system will utilize the railroad deck of Eads and related tracks, including underground lines in downtown St. Louis.

Metro Link will connect East St. Louis, St. Louis, St. Louis County and Lambert Airport, with additional spur lines to be constructed later. As auto and truck traffic increases, many metropolitan areas have found such rail facilities to be indispensable.

The Bi-State Development Agency will build and operate the system. The construction cost will be borne by the federal government in conjunction with such local resources as the Eads Bridge track and tunnel and 14 miles of track acquired from the Norfolk & Southern Corp.

The progress being made indicates that it could be "full speed ahead" for Metro Link in 1989.

ICC rates issue a mind game

It would be nice to have seen the Illinois Commerce Commission live by its own rules and come up with a decision on the Illinois Power electric rate increase in the 11-month period that it uses for most of its rate decisions.

Last week the ICC, for the third time, delayed a decision on the case, this time for up to six more months — promising to try for a decision by March 31.

We can understand why the hearing commissioner would want a bit more time to interpret the voluminous testimony presented to the ICC many months ago. The paperwork is mind boggling.

However, the ICC must realize that many entities are depending on an expedient decision in addition to IP, including hundreds of thousands of residents and businesses. One can hardly figure a budget without knowing what sort of bills to expect.

IP has asked for a phased-in increase that would assist the power company in paying off the $4.3 billion debt of the Clinton nuclear power plant. The merits of that request are another issue entirely, and up to the expertise of the ICC to decide.

Illinois Power will get a rate increase, but it will not get as much as it has asked for, according to both company officials and opponents of the plan.

Each month that goes by without the new rates in effect means literally millions of dollars in lost revenue for IP, company officials have told us. While the ratepayers might not care what it means to IP, you can bet they will when IP goes back to the ICC and asks for higher rates later, to compensate for any losses suffered during the interim.

IP also needs to know the outcome of the rate plan in order to negotiate special rates with such entities as American Steel Foundries and Granite City Steel. Those rates are intended to entice economic development, without which there would be less property tax base and fewer jobs.

You can look at all this and say, like the Illinois Public Action Council did earlier this week, that "the good news is that it's much longer before people have to start paying any increase."

However, you can also see that any delay that hurts IP now will undoubtedly end up hurting the rest of us later.

No one wants to see the ICC hearing officer bungle his recommendations. But we feel 11 months is more than enough time to decide any case.

Cleric blasts Fisk, mayor

To the editor:

Following are letters sent in recent days to both Mayor Von Dee Cruse and Alderman Paul Fisk.

Dear Mayor:
My letter comes with reference to the City Council meeting held Dec. 20 and chaired by yourself, Von Dee, you know very well that I have supported you and your office. I have openly commended you for your leadership in specific areas. However, I am more than a little distressed over this last council meeting.

Your handling of the meeting had the markings of manipulation and even dishonesty. You know that I asked you first if we couldn't do something about the condition of the sidewalk in front of our church. You then instructed me to talk to Mr. Warfield, which I did.

For you to sit silent in that council meeting as though you knew nothing of the process of our request, nothing of the terrible condition of the sidewalk — and even allow that I in some way maneuvered city funds in behalf of this church — is unconscionable. There is no excuse for this.

Our parking lot is used continuously by citizens of our community. Parades assemble here three or four times a year: the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts, the City Park baseball league, the Masonic Lodge, the Labor Day parade besides those using the post office and police station. Never once have we turned a request down.

This, in addition to the deplorable condition of the sidewalk and the liability connected with it. I say all of this because your action made us look like resent that.

Dear Paul Fisk:

I am very disappointed that you chose to use our church in an argument that was obviously manipulative and left connotations of dishonesty directed toward us.

Let me remind you as I have reminded Mr. Cruse, our parking lot is used continuously by citizens of our community. What this means to me is that, if it is indeed the prerogative of the alderman to repair sidewalks, why wasn't something done in the past 10 years about it? Why complain now? You should instead be thankful. That is, unless there are other motives involved, which obviously there are.

For your information, I went to Mayor Cruse first about the sidewalk condition. I told him we were going to do some landscaping to enhance the appearance of the street. And, if they were going to repair the sidewalk any time soon, I wished they would do it first so as not to destroy trees and shrubs.

Mr. Cruse agreed it should be done, said he thought there were funds available and that I should go to see Mr. Warfield. I followed his instruction and the repairs resulted. It is sad that the mayor and the street superintendent agree to the repair and our aldermen oppose it!

If indeed you have differences of opinion with political opposition, it is necessary to implicate others? Are we as citizens and members of your ward merely expendables to be used for the sake of your own prejudice and design? It appears that we are.

I intend to discuss the matter with our board and I am certain that they will be as offended as I that you, our alderman, chose to use us in a way that brings reproach to this church.

Toys just not same anymore

I remember it distinctly. The first sound of the day was the Christmas morning primordial scream.

"DAAAAADDDDD!!!! I got it! I got it!"

The bearer of the greeting was my five-haired 5-year-old.

"I got it! My Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle!"

I remained straight-faced. "Your Teenage Nutant Ninja what?"

"This," he said, popping a toy figurine in my face. "Santa brought it!"

"I got it! My Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle!"

"From Santa, huh?" I glanced at my wife. Her market savvy on what's popular each Christmas is second only to St. Nick. After all, she's the one who sees the cartoons, not me.

"Yep, from Santa," responded the energy-bound youngster. "And he gave me these, too."

He thrust his feet into the air, fortunately not in my face.

"What are those?" I asked, looking at what appeared to be a new pair of ordinary tennis shoes. They weren't.

"They're 'Visionaries,' Dad." The lad must have thought Dad was either stupid or couldn't read labels. At that time of morning he was right.

"Visionaries, huh? Well, at least your feet will see where you're going."

I could see from the blank stare that Dad's attempt at humor was lost on childhood. I cleared my throat. "Well, it looks like you got everything you wanted this year, right?"

"No, I really wanted a 'Nintendo,' he said.

"Nintendo?" But you didn't order a Nintendo.

His look told me that Santa should have known what the kid wanted even when he didn't order it. I changed the subject.

"Uh, well, what else did you get this year?"

"Nothing important," he said, going back to his Teenage Mutant whatever-it-is. "Just some clothes."

Designated driver avoids tragedy following holiday season drinking

To the editor:

"The Designated Driver" was the theme of this year's Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week in late December.

During the holiday season when many Illinoisans are drinking at family reunions and office parties, designated drivers can keep celebrations from turning into tragedies.

The designated driver is a person in the group who will not drink and will drive everyone home.

This will help you to enjoy a holiday party where liquor is served and then to get home safely. Following are additional tips to use alcohol responsibly:

1. Know your limit. You can be legally intoxicated without feeling intoxicated. The body rid itself of alcohol through the liver at a rate of one drink per hour.

Do not drink more than one drink per hour and do not drink for at least an hour before driving.

2. When dining out, patronize restaurants that provide escort services for customers who drink too much. Some restaurants also offer free soft drinks to "designated drivers."

3. Be a responsible host. Provide a variety of non-alcoholic drinks to drivers and others who do not wish to drink.

4. Do not "push" alcohol. Anyone mixing or pouring drinks should be instructed to pour small amounts of liquor and avoid overloading drinks.

5. The food and beverage area should be set up so that guests are encouraged to nibble snacks or eat food throughout the party.

Food in the stomach slows the impact of alcoholic drinks.

6. Stop serving drinks at least an hour before the party ends, and make sure that intoxicated guests do not drive. Arrange rides with other drivers, call a taxicab or drive them home yourself.

Alcohol affects judgment, reduces field of vision — and impairs balance, coordination and motor skills. All of these skills are critical to safe driving.

Remember, you do not have to be legally drunk to be impaired. So ride with a "designated driver" if you have been drinking.

Finance institutions see 1989 in a positive light

By Jim Corsey

GRANITE CITY — Although 1988 was not a boom year for national financial institutions, it wasn't as bad for locals, and Granite Cityans remain optimistic about the coming year.

Doing business with local banks and savings and loan is not a risky proposition, said Dave Knollman, president of the First Granite City Savings, (GCS) a savings and loan.

"We (GCS) have been in the Granite City area for 94 years, and I can see no reason why we cannot continue for many more years," he said. "It looks like the Quad-Cities economy bottomed out about five years ago. Now it seems to be getting healthier. A lot of new construction has taken place in the last couple of years and it is still continuing. I also have a good feeling that something very positive will happen within the next year or two in the downtown area," Knollman said.

"Right now, our net worth puts us in the top 10 percent of all the savings and loans in the United States," Knollman said. "We work hard to try and make a loan to everyone that comes in. We're also very flexible."

The reason for the apprehension among many investors lies with uncertainty over savings and loans, according to Dr. Stanford Levin, chairman of the department of economics at SIUE.

"These S and L's were loaning out large amounts of money to investors who then went broke. That led to financial disaster, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. had to bail out the S and L's. That hurt the S and L's and got incredible market of confidence among banking customers."

The negative publicity hasn't hurt Granite City's downtown State Savings and Loan, which has been in the business of providing loans for 69 years. State President James Seiz attributes the S and L criticism to a small number of saving and loans. "Eighty-one percent of savings and loans in America are earning money," Seiz said. "Fifty savings and loans represent 70 percent of the losses in this industry."

The FSILC is the trouble, he said. "By the end of 1988, the FSILC spent $4.5 billion to pay for the insolvent savings and loans. Even with the trouble, State Savings and Loan had an excellent year in fiscal 1988. I attribute that success to our excellent customer service."

Local banks haven't suffered from the adverse publicity of the S and L's, but still they have to deal with confidence in the economy.

Bart Solon, president of Central Bank, with headquarters in Fairview Heights, but a location in downtown Granite City, said the former Granite City Trust and Savings Bank, which soon be consolidated that facility into Central's Fehling Road site, the former American Heritage Bank.

"The reason why were moving our local headquarters is the declining customer traffic at this location. We're expanding the other location (Fehling Road) because the volume of customer traffic is greater and demands the expansion." There remain a downtown location on Madison Avenue.

Central's move from downtown is looked at as good news by Granite City leaders. Central is giving the site and adjacent parking lot to the city, which hopes to be able to use part of that property to entice a store like a Wal-Mart to locate downtown. There remain many other keys to landing Wal-Mart, however.

"The downtown area is coming closer to reality," Solon said. "There are bright spots, like the American Steel re-opening. A lot has been done to promote downtown as a retail shopping base. We feel very good about that."

Central's main competitor, Magna Bank, based in Belleville with a local command situated at the former First Granite City National Bank downtown, has three banking facilities to serve customers.

According to local president and board chairman, Melvin Wilmmsmeyer, the merge with Magna banks was a good thing. "For us, we could have continued," Wilmmsmeyer said. "We didn't have to merge with someone," Wilmmsmeyer said. "In the mode of bank turnovers, our concern was a bank takeover occurring and, to protect our investors and customers, we felt we should look for an organization with a good record of retaining employees and giving individuality. Magna offered both of those," he said.

'Shack' tumbles; autos find way to Zone

GRANITE CITY — Auto Shack has a new name. The new sign says AutoZone over the Auto Shack store at 3130 Nameoli Road.

"Our company's new name is going up here in Granite City and at all the stores in our chain," said John Yancy, manager, customer satisfaction. The fast-growing retail auto parts company currently has 455 stores in 16 states.

"Our name is the only change," said AutoZone President Peter Formanek. Customers will see no change whatever in our commitment to customer satisfaction, our high quality merchandise, or our consistently low prices."

Formanek and Chairman J.R. Hyde III started Auto Shack in 1979 with three stores and one warehouse in Memphis, Tenn.

Why change the name? In 1982 Auto Shack already had 64 stores and an ambitious growth plan, when Tandy Corporation (owner of Radio Shack) sued Auto Shack, claiming exclusive rights to "Shack."

"Rather than wasting time and money in long, drawn-out litigation, we decided to choose another name for our company," said Formanek. In 1987, Auto

Shack settled the lawsuit out of court by agreeing to change its name.

"We decided our company would be just as successful under another name," Formanek said.

Newsweek magazine was the first to break the news nation

'The letter Z suits our high performance company and Zone gets across our basic message — that AutoZone is a place set apart from the rest, in a class of our own in the industry.'

Peter Formanek
 President

wide that AutoZone was the new name chosen by Auto Shack. In a Nov. 30, 1987, article titled "What really is in a name?" the magazine described how the company found its new name.

United Steelworkers call arbitration decision over USX 'a major victory'

By Anne Hazard
 P-R/J Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — The United Steelworkers of America expressed jubilation this month over a major arbitration victory in the union's battle with the USX steel company to stop an industry practice of hiring outside workers for maintenance work.

News of their triumph came during the USWA's "Basic Steel Conference," held Dec. 12 and 13 and attended by more than 300 presidents of steel union locals throughout the country.

Jack Parton, a spokesman for the USWA in northwestern Indiana and northeastern Illinois, said he believes big steel companies will re-establish apprenticeship programs and train union workers to do maintenance work as a result of the victory.

The union and some steel executives nationwide have been at odds over the hiring of outside contract workers including welders, boilermakers, millwrights and pipefitters.

The industry has argued that it must hire outside workers because the regular work force often is used at capacity in the production of steel.

Union workers believe, however, that they should get the maintenance work unless such tasks fit narrowly defined exceptions in their collective bargaining agreements.

The steelworkers blame the companies for creating the problem by abandoning apprenticeship and training programs for these types of jobs.

In a Nov. 18 arbitration decision that was widely circulated last week, USX's management in Fairless Hills, Pa., was ordered to pay millions of dollars in back pay to local union workers who lost income to outside contract workers brought in by the company.

The steelworkers' union said that USX will have to pay workers between $8 million and $11 million to meet the arbitration award.

The Fairless Hills plant also was ordered to hire enough permanent workers to avoid future hiring of outside workers, on a temporary basis.

"I've never seen an arbitrator in (the steel industry) do this," said Carl Frankel, associate general counsel for the union.

George Hubbard, a union spokesman, said the case involved 1,100 violations by USX of a collective bargaining contract that limited the company's use of outside workers.

The company argued that no penalty should be imposed because Fairless workers were "fully utilized" and working substantial overtime, Hubbard said.

George Kuebler, a USX spokesman, said the company (formerly U.S. Steel) has not fully reviewed the ruling but plans to abide by it. He could not estimate the cost of the decision at this time.

Parton said there are another 1,500 cases in northwestern Indiana and northeastern Illinois in which the steelworkers have challenged similar outside hiring practices.

Approximately 25 percent of those cases are similar to the Fairless Hills case, he said. In the remaining 75 percent, the steel companies are justifying their outside hiring practices with more than just the argument that the regular work force is at full capacity.

"We feel very confident about (winning) those 25 percent, and the others we feel fairly confident that we'll be able to sustain them through arbitration," Parton said.

"In every case where we've been able to obtain what (the companies) paid the (outside) contractor, the steelworkers could have done it cheaper."

Kuebler said he could not comment on whether USX will change its practices in hiring outside workers as a result of the ruling. "Any grievance proceeding we would consider" a matter between the company and the union, he said.

rods a plan she has for an acquisition almost to fruition. She does this with the unwitting help of Jack Trainer (Harrison Ford), a junior executive at another brokerage firm who is just one more bad deal away from a new office on the sidewalk.

Trainer does not realize that Tess is a secretary. Tess doesn't realize that Trainer is Parker's boyfriend, until the near fatal day when Parker returns and things start getting, for lack of a better word, tense.

"Working Girl" is a brilliantly complete comedy with a point. Director Mike Nichols displays a complete understanding of the characters he is bringing to life. This film's attention to minute details of human interaction and foibles make it a modern-day example of entertainment that is both inspirational and important, not to mention thoroughly enjoyable.

When Parker breaks her ankle on the first day of her ski vacation, and is laid-up for two weeks before she can return to work, Tess takes over and ram-

It is hard to imagine Christmas without all the traditions and symbols that are so closely tied to it.

At the "Story of the Star" at St. Louis Science Center, which runs through Dec. 31, visitors learn the origins of some of these symbols and how they came to be Christmas traditions.

Mistletoe, for instance, was adapted for Christmas use from the ancient Druids, who cut the plant with a golden blade in the belief that the tiny green berries would protect them from harm.

Even more closely associated with Christmas is the evergreen tree, which stands decorated in nearly every living room where the holiday is celebrated. Legend says that the custom of bringing the tree inside as part of the celebration originated with St. Boniface in 8th century Germany.

But, according to John Wharton, director of the Science Center's Star Theater, it really was Martin Luther who popularized the evergreen as a "Christmas tree." The 16th century Reformation leader, also in Germany, was intrigued by the beauty of the night winter sky, and attempted to recreate it inside his home by decorating evergreen trees with candles.

Also closely connected with Christmas is the "Star of Bethlehem" that led the three Wise Men to the Christ child. Though the star reportedly was seen by only these three people, it is perhaps the most famous of all celestial objects

The presentation attempts to explain the astronomical nature of the star. Visitors first are given an "in the round" view of the nighttime winter sky as we see it, and various constellations are identified.

"We've recreated the sky as visible from earth at the time of the birth of Christ," Wharton

Determining exactly what the Wise Men saw has taken many years of research, and only recently has evidence led to what scientists consider accurate conclusions, Wharton said.

"Much importance lay in determining when Herod (king of Judea) died," he said. "Herod issued the decree to have all male children under the age of two killed, hoping to kill Jesus shortly before he died. We know he died during a total lunar eclipse, and the one most visible from that part of the earth that best fits the time frame occurred in January, 1 B.C."

Show times are 2 p.m. Monday through Friday; noon and 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $3 for adults, $2.50 for seniors and $2 for children 5 to 12. Children under 5 are admitted free.

Cahokia defends tourney title; Warriors 5th

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — The Cahokia Comanches successfully defended their championship at the Granite City Holiday Wrestling Tournament, taking six individual championships in the process.

The Warriors had to settle for fifth place in the 28th annual tournament, which concluded Wednesday night. Granite City failed to win an individual title, with 125-pounder Brent Davis suffering his first defeat of the season in the title bout to McCluer North's Nate Mosley.

The Comanches, who are unbeaten in dual meets this year, won their second major tournament in less than two weeks with 273½ points. Francis Howell North was a distant second with 205 points. The Warriors took fifth with 134½ points.

Cahokia got individual championships from Joe Ward (103 pounds), Abby Myers (119), Lance Taylor (130), Nehemia Sims (145), Darrell Thomas (160) and Fred Garrett (171). The Comanches also got a second, two thirds and a fifth.

Granite City got a second, a third, two fourths, two fifths and a sixth. The Warriors' Davis fell to 19-1 with an 8-5 loss to Mosley in the 125-pound final after beating Mosley 6-5 in the third qualifying round. Davis had won five matches in the tournament before the final.

Bryan Pritchett was the next highest finisher for the Warriors. He took third place at 119 pounds with an 11-2 decision over Roxana's Ryan Smith in the consolation bout. Pritchett had lost 21-7 to Cahokia's Myers in the third qualifying round and 11-4 to Don Davis of Lincoln in the second championship round. Pritchett had won by default over Davis in the first qualifying round. Pritchett is now 16-3 on the season after going 4-5 in the tournament.

Brad Massey (171) and Dale Hutson (275) were the only other

Lady Warriors lose in OT

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

MASCOUTAH — John Hutchings hoped the Lady Warriors wouldn't get as tough a draw in this year's Mascoutah Holiday Tournament. It didn't turn out to make much difference.

Although they avoided perennial powerhouses like Belleville East and West, it was still two games and out for Granite City. They dropped a 46-43 verdict in overtime to Collinsville on Tuesday morning in the consolation bracket to wrap up the 1988 portion of the schedule.

"We just can't get the ball through the hoop at the crucial moment," said Hutchings after the Lady Warriors fell to 3-6. "I hate to think we're going to keep losing these close ones. We just don't get any breathers."

The Lady Warriors were five seconds away from a victory Tuesday, but Kim Pawlak fouled Paul Judge and the senior nailed both free throws for a 39-39 tie going into overtime. The Warriors led briefly in the extra three minutes, but Collinsville overcame that and moved on to play Belleville Althoff in the consolation semifinals on Wednesday morning.

Stinchfield, the Lady Kahoks' 6-0 sophomore center, had 24 points to pace the winners. Jamie Casillas added 11. The Lady Warriors, who committed 25 turnovers in a 48-41 loss to Weslin in the first round on (See GIRLS, Page 4D)

Red Bud KOs Devils in semis

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

FREEBURG — The Red Devils' loss once again was delivered a belated lump of coal in their Christmas stockings.

For the second straight year, Venice will be forced to battle for third place in the Columbia-Freeburg Holiday Tournament. The Red Bud Musketeers, behind 31 points by 6-5 senior Corey Steibel, saw to that Wednesday with a 68-53 victory in the championship semifinals.

That means the tournament's top two seeds, Venice and Greenville, will meet tonight as expected, but it will be for third place instead of the title. The second-seeded Comets were knocked off 86-76 by No. 3 seed Southwestern Plains.

Venice and Red Bud were close all the way, although the Musketeers held the lead for the majority of the game. They led by as much as nine (46-37) in the third quarter. But the Devils (6-2) trimmed the margin to four entering the fourth quarter.

Behind another big scoring effort by 6-4 senior Hosea King (26 points), Venice finally caught the Musketeers at 52-52 with 5:40 left. King put the Devils ahead twice before Doug Cerny buried a three-pointer for a 57-56 Red Bud lead. Erwin Claggett (13

Warriors, Trojans to square off

Quincy handles GC, 68-51

By Mike Blackshere

COLLINSVILLE — The Warriors came into the Collinsville-Schuicks Holiday Classic struggling, having lost three games in a row. Unfortunately, the Granite City had to face the traditionally tough Quincy Blue Devils in their first game.

Quincy held to tradition by putting a pretty good team on the floor and beating the Warriors 68-51. Quincy's record went to 7-3 while the Warriors dropped to 5-7. Granite City will face Madison in a consolation bracket game today at 4 p.m.

The Warriors were very sluggish offensively, scoring only ten points in the both the first and third quarters. They were 16 for 68 from the field and just 3 for 15 from three-point range.

"We just had a poor performance tonight," coach Don Detenring said. "We can't do it with just two players."

"Mike Wilkinson played well and John VanHusik played well in the second half, but the other kids have to pick up the slack and they are not doing it."

Calvary routs Madison

By Mike Blackshere

COLLINSVILLE — It has been a tough year so far for the Trojans. Coming into the Collinsville-Schuicks Holiday Classic, they had a record of 1-3. Madison's first-round draw was a good example of the kind of luck they have had so far this season.

They had to play the Springfield Calvary Saints, who are the tournament's top seed, coming in with a record of 11-0. Five of their victories have come against Class AA schools even though Calvary only has an enrollment of 335.

The Saints showed why they were seeded higher than such schools as East St. Louis Lincoln and defending champion Lincoln (Ill.) as they drubbed the Trojans 90-56. The Saints featured two guards who are headed for Division I programs, and a center whose father wears two Super Bowl rings.

The star of the team is Rennie Clemons, a 6-1 junior guard who leads the state in scoring with a 34.5-point average. He is an All-America candidate who is being recruited by such schools as

Harry a broadcasting pioneer

Friends and fans of Harry Caray honored him at a glittery gala affair in Las Vegas recently.

Stars of film and TV, plus an outstanding turnout of athletes from the pro and amateur ranks, were all there. The baseball delegation was led by Stan Musial, Red Schoendienst and the "Say Hey Kid," Willie Mays.

The "roast" in which no holds were barred, honored a man who I consider the one who really made electronic journalism an art form. When Caray started, at roughly the same time I started my career, we were employees of the same man, Elsey Roberts, who owned and operated both the St. Louis Star-Times and KXOK.

Before Harry took up his place at the mike at Sportsman's Park, the man who brought you athletic events were expected to keep their personal feelings to themselves. There were a few exceptions to this rule, mostly those bringing you pro boxing championships featuring Joe Louis. The guys doing the fights were grudgingly allowed to get excited, especially if Joe was in for the home team made a lot of fans, mostly the women who before Harry hardly cared. My wife, Joyce, became a loyal Cardinal fan from listening to Harry's description of the games.

There is also another aspect of the broadcasting game in which Caray pioneered. He was the first to give the fans the benefit of all the team's statistics. He regularly backed up his opinions with those stats.

His 15-minute daily broadcast on KXOK was year in and year out the leading sports program in the St. Louis area. Even Jack Buck and his fantastic following never has come close to matching Caray's loyal following. Cabby Street, Joe Garagiola, Slim Miller and Granite City's own Franz Laux had large followings, but they never came close to the "Mayor of Rush Street."

It wouldn't be too farfetched to say that if Harry wanted to run for mayor of the Windy City, he would be a shoe-in. After all, another baseball play-by-play from the Midwest made it to a high elected office, and he couldn't hold a candle to Harry.

the process of winning his title back from Germany's Max Schmeling.

For a broadcaster to raise his voice in the booth was simply not done. The print media guys were partly to blame for this attitude. Even now there's one unbreakable rule: No cheering in the press box.

My first radio broadcast here was Bob Elson, who tolled for WGN in Chicago. On the east coast it was, of course, Mel Allen. If either one came close to rooting for the Cubs, White Sox, Giants, Dodgers or Yankees, they would have been laughed out of the profession.

Harry Caray, however, was an unabashed fan from the start. He was the first to critique a home team player. His cheering

Warrior skaters fall to 3-8 with 8-0 loss to CBC

GRANITE CITY — The Hockey Warriors continued to take their lumps as they were blanked 8-0 by the CBC Ice men at Wilson Park on Monday.

Bill Lutz had a hat trick for CBC while the Warriors managed only five shots the entire game.

"We were without Nathan Weaver and Mike Naevie, not that that would have made much of a difference," said Warrior coach Gary Henson after his team fell to 3-8. "CBC is still one of the powerhouses, although I don't think they're as good as they have been in other years."

CBC had 42 shots. The Ice men scored three goals in each of the first two periods and two in the third.

Henson called up Bill Gruwell from the junior varsity squad, and he played well.

"He's a real big kid," said Henson. "One thing we've been lacking is a winger who can move the puck out of our own zone. And defensemen like John Culbert, Jason Bucatch and John Galinski played pretty well. I just asked them to go as hard as they could and they did. The effort was there."

The Warriors play at home again Monday against Lafayette at 8:30 p.m.

Special ceremony Friday retires Sutter's No. 11

By Jack M. Farmer

Brian Sutter will blush Friday night. That comes with being embarrassed, Sutter might even cry, but the tears will be of joy. And thousands of fans packed into the Arena will stand and applaud for many minutes.

All this, even before the puck is dropped.

Prior to Friday's game with the Minnesota North Stars, the Blues will honor a star of their own when they retire Sutter's No. 11. The festivities start at 7:35 p.m.

Why will Sutter be embarrassed? If you watched him play, you don't have to ask that question. The man overflows with honor. He needs no more. Yet there is no one more deserving in the Blues organization than Sutter.

"To tell you the truth, I'm kind of embarrassed by the whole thing," said Sutter, 32. "I'm proud of what I've done over the years, but I never considered it anything special."

And that's why makes Sutter so special. His modesty is true, his loyalty to the team golden. For 12 years Sutter cruised left wing, crashing his blue nose in the corners, getting raped in front of the net and fighting the biggest enforcers in the National Hockey League.

"I never put myself in front of the team," Sutter said. "I'm a St. Louis Blue. I care about the Blues. I guess I'm just a loyal person."

Sutter was captain of the Blues from the 1979-80 season until June 20, when he retired and was named coach of the Blues. He scored 303 goals and 636 points in his career and was a three-time NHL All-Star. He amassed a club record 1,786 penalty minutes and came to be one of the league's most respected players.

"In all my (14) years of coaching before I came to St. Louis, he was the player that made me understand what pride and character was all about when it comes to hockey players," said Jacques Demers, who coached the Blues from 1983-86. "Brian's the type of guy that if the score was 2-1 or 1-0, he'd dive in front of the puck with his face to save the game and deal with the consequences later. That's nothing made up. He'd do it."

"There's no question that around the league he was one of the most respected — by players and coaches."

Pride, character, respect, loyalty — any one of them could be sewn on the back of sweater No. 11. Rezie Fierko, a friend of Sutter's since the two were drafted by Blues in 1976, identifies Sutter in his own way.

"The best way to describe him is that he is a very intense competitor," said Fierko, who has taken over for Sutter as captain of the Blues. "He comes to play all the time. He comes to coach all the time."

"Brian was very good at what he did because he was always so gung-ho. He gave everything he could to this organization. He's what you call a winner."

If you want to play word association, many names pop up when you say "Blues." Red Berenson, Al Arbour, Gary Unger, Glenn Hall, Noel Picard, Bob Klager — they all are a big part of the history of the team. Yet Sutter's number will be only the third retired by the Blues. When No. 11 is hoisted from center ice to the Arena's rafters, it will join No. 8 (Barclay Plager) and No. 3 (Bob Gassoff). Sutter was very close to Plager, who died in February after a long battle with inoperable brain tumors, and a good friend of Gassoff, who was killed in an off-season motorcycle accident in 1977.

"The way I look at it, there's a man up there — he's No. 8," Sutter said. "To have my number up there with his and another man I deeply loved, Bobby Gassoff, I guess that's the biggest honor."

"Not a day goes by that I don't think about Barclay. Barclay will never leave. His smile is always there. He was a special, special person."

Demers said there is an off-ice specialty about Sutter that most fans never get to know.

"Put aside the character and determination on the ice," said Demers, now the coach of the Detroit Red Wings. "I know he's a good family man and a good person. What he's getting on Friday night — he deserves every bit of it."

Sutter said his family deserves the honor as much as he does.

"For my family, maybe it's a 'Thank You' (from the team) for me being away for so long."

said Sutter, who ranks second on the Blues' all-time list in games played, goals, assists and points. "You know, in hockey, once you step on the ice you do anything for the team. But sometimes the family gets neglected. You have to have a special family, be married to a special person to get the understanding."

Sutter's wife, Judy, and children Shaun and Abigail, see no more of him now as coach than they did when he was a player. For Sutter, there is only one way to approach a job.

"I'm the type of person that is always striving to be better," he said. "The day you stop asking more of yourself — you might as well quit because you're gonna hurt yourself and hurt the people around you."

"That doesn't only go for hockey, it goes for life, too."

Three players wore jersey No. 11 before Sutter. There will be no others. That's honorable, but it only makes sense. No one could possibly wear that sweater after Brian Sutter. It would be embarrassing to try.

Trojans

UNLV, Arizona, Iowa and Illinois.

As if that isn't already enough, the Saints have another outstanding guard in 6-2 senior Lawrence Hill, who has signed a letter of intent to play at Eastern Michigan.

To anyone in attendance at the game, it was easy to figure out who was the son of the pro football player. It was Herb McMath Jr., who was conservatively listed at 6-6 and 250 pounds in the game program. His father, Herb McMath Sr., earned his two Super Bowl rings as a tackle with the Oakland Raiders.

It figured to be a long night on the sidelines for Madison coach Al Collins.

"We played well in the first quarter," Collins said. "But in the second quarter the ball just wouldn't go in for us. We are a young team, and we got out of sync and just couldn't score. I think we aren't handling pressure very well."

The Trojans were led in scoring by 5-10 senior Jesse Leonard with 14 points. But Leonard was on the bench with foul trouble for most of the second and third periods, and all but two of his points came in the fourth quarter after the game was already out of hand. Sophomore Federico Walker was the only jersey as him. Even with his slow start, he led all scorers by game's end with 31 points.

"He (Clemmons) is tremendous, he's everything I heard he was and more," Collins said. "I knew that he would get his points in the game and that didn't bother me, but we gave up too many cheap baskets to some of his teammates."

Calvary coach Jim Drew respects the Trojans, but knew they were in for a down year.

"Madison beat us pretty good last year (89-73), but I knew they graduated a lot of people," Drew said. "They are a scrappy team, but they are rebuilding. We just have more talent than they have right now. I thought their coach did a good job. They got some good shots, but the kids just didn't hit them."

Madison will face Granite City at 4 p.m. today in the consolation bracket. Granite City lost its first game to Quincy 66-51. Madison won the consolation championship last year with a victory over Springfield Calvary.

Davis won individual championships in last year's holiday tournament, topped McCluer North's Dan Dunn 6-1 in the 112-pound third-place bout. Hutchinson (13-6, 4-2 in the tournament) had been derailed by East St. Louis Lincoln's Perry Delbach 11-5 in the second championship round.

Rich Fenoglio (145) was the other Warrior to place in the top six. He dropped the fifth-place match to Wood River's Scott Ventimiglia, whom Fenoglio had beaten in the first qualifying round. Fenoglio, who entered the tournament unbeaten on the year at 145 (6-0), finished 3-3 in the tournament and is 12-4 overall. He was pinned at 4:28 by Cahokia's Sims in the second championship round to send him into the fifth-place bout.

Cahokia is the first repeat champion since Granite City South won three straight from 1976-78.

Warriors

cented effort to make sure the Warriors didn't get any open shots from long range. They knew that Matt Cook was leading the area in three-point shooting, hitting 44 treys in his first 11 games. Quincy played a variety of defenses, but all of them featured a man on Cook wherever he went. The 5-9 junior was held to six points.

"We had to play a lot of man-to-man defense because we knew Cook could shoot the three-pointer," Quincy coach Jerry Leggett said. "Everyone on our team doesn't play man-to-man well, but we felt that is what we had to do."

Leggett might not like the way some of his players played defense, but he had to be happy with the play of 5-10 junior Lamar Ruddy, who guarded Cook most of the night. Ruddy had a good game, but it was the type that doesn't all show up in the box scores. Along with playing good defense, he ran the offense while getting 11 points, six rebounds, five assists and two steals.

Even with the game he had, Ruddy was still just the second best player on the floor. 4 Senior Eric Stratman was the heart and soul of the Blue Devils, scoring 24 points while pulling down 15 rebounds.

Stratman is a blue-collar player. He isn't quick and he can't jump, but he gets the job done with a variety of very plain and effective moves in the paint. At the end of the first quarter it was Stratman 10, Granite City 10, and he did it with pure hustle.

Deterding started 6-7 freshman Jeff Smith in the pivot for the second game in a row and he started out well. Smith scored the first four points of the game for the Warriors before Stratman and Co. clamped down on him inside.

"I'm very pleased with his (Smith's) progress," Deterding said. "He is only 14 years old. He tires easily and doesn't react very well defensively yet, but he fought his heart out and drew four quick fouls in the third quarter."

ing elbows away from the ball. We pushed it inside on them and rebounded very well."

Devils

hit a running layup with 38 seconds left to clinch it.

"It was a good team game," said Red Bud coach Darrell Schmieg, whose team knocked off Venice last year in the Spar-a-Tournament. "We got the ball inside to Corey when we needed to."

The Devils were hurt when Darryl Jackson fouled out early in the fourth quarter after scoring 13 points.

"Darryl was never in the game," said Devil coach Clinton Harris. "His mind was somewhere else. If you're going to be a top-notch player, you have to play like a top-notch player all the time."

The Devils lost to Southwestern Piasa in the tournament semifinals last year, so they had a chance to avenge two of last season's tournament defeats. Instead, they will get neither.

"I told them if we play hard we could beat two teams who got us last year," said Harris. "But we've got to get our heads up and come back Thursday and play again. It's not a three-point game, but we've got to do it."

Girls

Monday, made 20 more miscues on Tuesday. And they were again without Michelle Bequette, who is ineligible until the Lady Warriors' next game, Tuesday at home against Madison.

"Michelle might have made a difference in a couple of situations, but I don't know," Hutchings said. "I have all the confidence in the world in (freshman) Karen Sykes. But Michelle is two years older and might react differently."

The Red Devils, who won this tournament 11 of the first 19 years, have now won only one of the last five.

"I guess they've got our number here," Harris said. "Everybody gets pumped up for Venice. I don't think we were looking ahead. Our defense just folded tonight. They weren't shooting jumps shots. They were scoring on layups."

"We respond to a team like this," said Schmieg. "They'll be starstruck. It helped when Jackson fouled out. He didn't play real smart tonight, throw-

"There's still a long way to go this year, with only two conference games having been played."

"There are still several games we're capable of taking," Hutchings said. "But it's not going to be easy with West twice, East, Alton and East St. Louis. We've only had one real bad game (an 81-52 loss to Belleville East)."

The Warriors shot a bit better than in Monday's game, making 20 of 46 shots (43 percent). But they went to the foul line only six times, making three of them.
